

Broadcast Companies
are allowed to use
public airways free
of charge to serve
public interest.
Pappas Telecasting
Companies'
'donation' of $325,000 in airtime
to Republican candidates in certain areas seems to me to be an abuse of the privilege to serve the public.

Pappas' actions are legally questionable
and cast doubt on whether Pappas truly
intends to serve the public interest or just the interest of the people who believe in the same
political agenda as the management of Pappas.

Thank you,

Gary Vanderlinden
